of them is 100% true. Maps are only a medium (not the goal itself) that we can change if we want to. NLP provides us with the tools that we can use to change less useful maps for more useful ones in a certain context.

NLP Principles - NLP Training Center
The underlying principles of NLP. The underlying principles of NLP. NLP is based on a strong belief in the possibility of change. You will discover that: People are not their behaviour. When you accept the person, you are free to change behaviour. People already possess all the resources they need to succeed and achieve their desired outcomes - they just need to learn how to unlock them.

Thought a book called the principles of NLP would go deeper into things than this text does; however, the book does manage to convey a decent foundation for a beginner to understand the basics. So, not helpful at my level, but I could see how it could be for some just starting.

Principles of NLP by Joseph O'Connor
Another way to state this NLP principle is: everyone does their best with the tools he or she has available at that time. This also has to do with the following assumption about the positive intention ... 2. Behind every behavior there is a positive intention
